Monterey, California – De Paola’s new fine art series Feral documents the rewilding of divergent women stripped of language, etiquette, and tradition against the epic landscape of Big Sur, California.

Each image is presented in an edition of 12 and three artist proofs. These prints have been made by de Paola in his studio specifically for this exhibition, and have never previously been shown.

Mark de Paola is a New York City based fine art photographer and director whose work is in collections both public and private (The Getty, MoMA, etc).
